EUROPEAN ASSOCIATION
FOR AGROECOLOGY

2026

Agroecology Europe, the European Association promoting agroecology, was founded in 2016 by 19 founders from 10 countries.

We understand agroecology jointly as a science, practice, and a social movement. Our approach encompasses the entire food system, from the soil to the organisation of human societies. It is grounded in core principles and guided by shared values.

OUR VISION

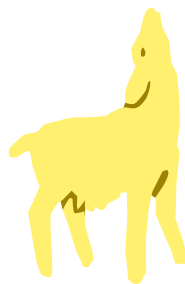

Agroecology Europe aims to place agroecology high on the European agenda of sustainable farming and food systems.

We foster interaction and knowledge sharing to build an inclusive European community of professionals, practitioners, and societal stakeholders working to advance agroecology.

OUR OBJECTIVES

-  Foster exchange and collaboration between scientists, advisers, educators, farmers, food producers, consumers, other stakeholders, and citizens in Europe;
-  Incentivise, coordinate and facilitate research, education, and the transition towards agroecological agricultural and food systems;
-  Disseminate all aspects of agroecology and sustainable development of agricultural systems;
-  Foster international cooperation;
-  Engage in and facilitate debates to clarify the relationship between agroecology and other approaches, such as organic farming, permaculture, biodynamic farming, climate smart agriculture, ecological farming, and sustainable intensification;
-  Promote agroecology in society as a whole.
